Ebru Dede “Subconscious” Solo Digital Exhibition @QArtSpace

Ebru Dede’s 7th solo exhibition opens at Q Art Space Online Gallery, on April 15th, 2023. She created this exhibition for the foundation of Q Art Space, to set an example.

When we see “subconscious” as a theme of a group of the artworks, we remember Surrealism, which interprets the subconscious, and Expressionism, which reflects the mood of the artist, among the art movements of the twentieth century. Since 1965 conceptual art has developed against them, produced entirely by thought and based on a certain idea, rather than emotions. Although today’s art is based on conceptual art, it has evolved with the pluralistic structure of postmodernism.

“I cannot fully reconcile with myself one of the Western art movements, as they have certain limits and are out of day. My journey of producing works is a little more complicated. Anyway, creativity in art requires a process, and many internal and external factors affect our works in this process.”

Based on today’s psychology data, we can say that the artist can go back and forth between the conscious and subconscious minds in a healthy way. The artist’s subconscious has always been a matter of curiosity. If you analyze the artist’s subconscious, you will see that the layers are in harmony with each other. The artist, who has reactions to the outside world, has peace and tranquility in his subconscious.

The depth of the artist’s subconscious is like space. Having a wide imagination, the artist can distinguish between the real and the imaginary world. Just as the universe embraces all the stars, the artist tries to measure and integrate all aspects of events. He is aware of how awkward he gets from time to time in this effort. He has an objective view of the world and himself. Being aware of the negativities of daily life, the artist tries to reflect them by producing works instead of being caught up in them.

In the exhibition consisting of 25 digital works, the artist wanted to express the expression of her own subconscious. Each of these works is an expressive description of the changes in the artist’s inner world. Due to the nature of the subconscious mind, it does not contain a certain limit of expression.
